REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Regarding claims 1, 16 the prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a communication network including a plurality of communication units, wherein at least one of those units is designated as a member unit for transmitting and receiving message and at least one of those units is designated as a routing unit for routing the messages from the member unit, a communication unit to transmit and receive message within the network comprising:

a designation module to designate the communication as the routing unit in response to determining that the communication unit communicates with at least one neighboring unit that is isolated from communications with remaining neighboring units of the communication unit, wherein the communication unit designation as the routing unit is fixed for routing subsequent network messages, in combination with other limitations as specified in the independent claims 1 and 16.

Regarding claims 30, 33, 36 the prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a communication network comprising:

a configuration module to determine a status of a communication unit as a routing unit for routing network traffic or as a member unit of a corresponding routing unit in accordance with information contained within received unit status message, wherein the communication unit status as the routing unit is fixed for routing subsequent network message and re-evaluated in response to changes in network connectivity, in combination with other limitation as specified in the independent claims 30, 33, 36.

Regarding claim 45, the prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a communication network including a plurality of communication units forming a first network tier to transmit and receive message within the network, wherein at least one of the communication units is designated as a routing unit to form a second network tier to route network traffic and at least one of the designated routing units is designated as a transmission routing unit to form a third network tier to transmit network information throughout the second and third network tiers, a method of configuring the network including:

determining a status of each communication unit as the transmission routing unit to transmit the network information throughout the second and third network tiers in response to that communication unit being designated as the routing unit, wherein the communication unit status as a transmission routing unit is fixed for flooding subsequent network connectivity message, in combination with other limitations as specified in the independent claim 45.

Regarding claims 54, 59, 64 the prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a communication network including a plurality of communication units, wherein at least one of those units is designated as a member unit for transmitting and receiving message and at least one of those units is designated as a relay unit for transferring the messages from the member unit, a communication unit to transmit and receive message within the network comprising:

a designation module to designate the communication unit as the relay unit based on a examination and in response to determining that at least one neighboring communication unit is required to utilize the communication unit to communicate with network communication units that are outside the range of and greater than one hop away from the neighboring communication unit, wherein the communication unit designation as the relay unit is fixed for transferring subsequent network messages, in combination with other limitation as specified in the independent claims 54, 59, 64.
